

Docebo - North American revenues increase of 400%, opens in Athens (GA) to accelerate growth in the U.S & Canadian market

Docebo, the international cloud E-Learning company, quadrupled its revenues in North America in the last 6 months and now strengthens its local operations by opening a new office to better compete and serve the market with a dedicated Team.

Athens (GA), Naples - Docebo today announced that due to its North American revenues, quadrupled in the last 6 months, a new subsidiary in Athens, Georgia has been opened to competitively serve its customers base.

Docebo's Athens office will be the hub to expand into the U.S. and Canada: this is a strategic step-forward and adds an influential advantage to Docebo's services and operations in the North American market.

As part of Docebo's commitment towards the American market, Docebo is already investing and hiring local resources in order to increase engagement with its community of Customers and Partners.

"This is a unique opportunity for us to expand our business even further into the world's largest economy" says Claudio Erba, CEO and founder of Docebo. "This brand-new office in Athens, Georgia, helps us by serving our Customers and Partners spread across North America territories even more effectively, as Docebo is now be able to physically work with a dedicated Team, bringing the E-Learning experience to the next level."

The Docebo E-Learning platform has already been selected by more than 50 North American companies (SMBs and Enterprises).
